Submission of Manuscripts

1. Format of manuscript
   The manuscript should comprise; ①Title page, ②Summary, ③Key words, ④Text (with References, Explanations for Figures, Tables and Charts), and ⑤Figures, Tables and Charts. (Articles should be submitted in A4 format and numbered from the title page in order.)

2. Preparation of manuscript
   Manuscripts should be comprised in accordance with the following rules:

2-1 Title Page
   The title page should contain a concise title which is as informative as possible.

2-2 Name of Author
   Full name of the author(s) should be listed. If the article has several authors, asterisk (*) should be given to the right upside of the name of a representative who will respond to queries from the readers. Authors should be limited to those who actually contributed to the planning, execution and summarizing of the research, and changes or additions of author(s) will not be permitted in principle once the manuscript has been accepted for publication.

2-3 Locations of Department and Institution
   Full names of the department(s) and institution(s) where the study was conducted should be listed together with the location (city, prefecture and nation). If the article has several authors, a representative one may be listed.

2-4 Summary/Abstract
   Summary/Abstract should be typed double-spaced on a separate sheet and include an objective Purpose, Methods and Results of which the author considers important. Summaries should not be itemized.

2-5 Key words
   Key words should be listed with a subtitle of "Key words".

2-6 Text
   2-6-1 Original Manuscripts may contain the following sections: Introduction, Materials and Methods, Subjects, Theoretical, Results, Discussion, and References. These sections may be integrated, if necessary.
   Manuscripts are limited within 45 sheets of one-sided A4 paper, including tables, figures, and references.
   2-6-2 Notes Notes are limited within 35 sheets of one-sided A4 paper, including tables, figures, and references.
   2-6-3 Mini-reviews Manuscripts should contain the following sections: Introduction, Reviews (including section titles where necessary), Conclusion and/or Perspectives, and References. Manuscripts are limited within 35 sheets of one-sided A4 paper, including tables, figures, and references.
   2-6-4 Reviews It doesn't prescribe length specifically.

2-7 Acknowledgments
   Author(s) may include acknowledgments on the bottom of the article with a subtitle of "Acknowledgments", if necessary.

2-8 References
   References should be numbered consecutively in the order in which they first appear in the text. These numbers must be given to the right upside of each sentence in which they appear. List references in the numbered order at the end of the article. Full name of the author(s) should be listed. References cited from Internet should be listed in or a margin of the text being apart from the list of references. Authors are fully responsible for the accuracy of references and must therefore take adequate care in quoting them.

2-9 Figures, Tables and Charts
   When using a shade, its depth must be described on them in percentages as shown in the following example so that the shades can be distinguished in the Journal. Use "Fig.1" or "Table.1" to describe them in the text instead of using "the following chart", "the table shown below" or other similar descriptions.
   [Example]
   [10% 20% 30% 40% 50%]

3. Measurement units
   Measurement units should be unified to S.I. units based on the Japanese Pharmacopoeia, 15th Edition. Other conventional units such as mmHg, Osm, etc., may be used if they are popularly accepted in medical fields.
   Celsius degree = °C  Millilitrer(s) = mL
   Litter(s)=L  Microliter(s) = µL
4. References
Referring the following examples, a reference to a journal should include: 1) Name of the author(s), 2) Title of the article, 3) Title of the journal, 4) Number of the issue, 5) Number of the page(s) in which the source appears, and 6) Year of publication. Full names of the authors should be listed. If the source is referred from an English language journal, the title of the journal must be typed in italics. The number of the issue of each journal must also be typed in gothic letters. The first and last number of pages of the referenced article must be linked by a hyphen. The year of which the article is published must be parenthesized.
